

Children's Reading Website

The Ministry of Education (MOE) officially launched the "National Children's Reading Website" on September 29, providing a channel for kids to select and find books of interest and make a record of the books they have already read.

The site is divided into five sections on reading activities and website naming events; suggested reading material for children; a "children's reading passport" registration area; links to recommended reading websites; and a discussion area for readers to share their thoughts on books.

The website can be accessed at: www.reading.edu.tw/.

(Extracted and translated from the Central Daily News, Sept. 30, 2000)