

2. Raft, David Zeb: Male; USA; Doctoral candidate, Department of East Asian Languages & Civilizations, Harvard University; Research topic: Research on Four-syllable Verse in Early Medieval China; Research period: Three months
3. Schmid, David Neil: Male; USA; Associate professor, Department of Philosophy & Religion, North Carolina State University; Research topic: Buddhist Proselytization in Medieval China; Research period: Three months
4. Chen, Zhihong: Female; USA; Doctoral candidate Department of History, University of Oregon; Research topic: Going to the Frontier: Chinese Intellectuals' Reconceptualization of Chinese Geography and Peoples during the 1930s; Research period: Three months
5. Ngoi, Guat Peng: Female; Malaysia; Doctoral candidate, Department of Chinese Studies, National University of Singapore; Research topic: Taizhou School and Intellectual Changes in Late Ming; Research period: Three months

Reviews

■ Selection of Online Local Resources in Taiwan

This publication was produced by the NCL in conjunction with the Ministry of Education's emphasis on "establishing Taiwan's identity" as a central policy guideline. An important strategy in "establishing Taiwan's identity" is to "promote the special characteristics of Taiwan." Understanding of native Taiwan resources, appreciation of Taiwanese literature, and reader guides to Taiwan history are all important to the task of deepening understanding about Taiwan.

This book comprises the following sections: 1. Website introductions: This section introduces local website resources of 25 counties and cities in Taiwan, including sites with information on local history, geography, culture, customs, transportation, festivals, agricultural products, specialty products, industrial products, historic sites, architecture, animal and plant ecology, topography and geology, and major social and education organizations; 2. County and City Overviews: This section provides basic information on 25 counties and cities in Taiwan, including information on population, number of sub-neighborhood divisions, administrative districts, number of households, number of villages and neighborhoods, land area, location, climate, temperature, specialty products, places of interest, folk festivals, scenic areas, and date of information; 3. City and County Maps: This section includes basic maps for 25 counties and cities in Taiwan, including maps of townships and their position in Taiwan. The book serves as a resource for fostering interest in local affairs, as

